Agony in Effigy: Art, Truth, Pain, and the Body
Through June 18, 2018

The intersection of physical violence and spiritual transcendence is the subject of this historical survey, which explores depictions of suffering across three centuries of European art. Agony in Effigy illuminates the approaches that multiple generations of artists have taken to the representation of pain—ranging from images of religious martyrs dating back to the early 1500s to the powerful antiwar tableaux of Jacques Callot, Francisco Goya, and others. Featuring more than 50 works drawn from BAMPFA’s encyclopedic collection, the exhibition offers a profound meditation on a central subject of European art history.

Organized by Senior Adjunct Curator Philippe Pirotte with Matthew Coleman, curatorial assistant.
Art Wall: Karabo Poppy Moletsane
Through July 15, 2018

BAMPFA’s latest Art Wall presentation is a newly commissioned work by South African artist and designer Karabo Poppy Moletsane, whose large-scale murals are inspired by photo portraits she takes on the streets of Pretoria and Johannesburg. Moletsane’s vivid color palette and striking geometric compositions draw on the aesthetics of Afrofuturism, even as they recall the irreverent street-art traditions of South Africa’s vibrant multicultural society.

An emerging artist based in Johannesburg, Moletsane is the founder of Mother Tongue Creative House, a design agency dedicated to cultivating South Africa’s next generation of female creative talent. Her mural for the BAMPFA Art Wall—a massive, kaleidoscopic portrait of four idiosyncratic subjects—marks the first presentation of Moletsane’s work in a North American museum.

Organized by BAMPFA Director and Chief Curator Lawrence Rinder with Curatorial Assistant Valerie Moon.

Way Bay
Through June 3, 2018
With New Works on View June 13–September 2

BAMPFA opens its 2018 exhibition program with a sweeping exploration of the creative energies that have emerged from the San Francisco Bay Area over the past 200 years. A two-part exhibition of art and film, plus poetry, performance documentation, and archival materials, Way Bay features nearly 200 works that reveal the depth and diversity of artists’ engagement with the region’s geographic, social, and cultural landscape. The exhibition features dozens of recent acquisitions, many of them never before exhibited in a museum setting. A second iteration of the exhibition featuring dozens of additional works runs June 13–September 2.

Way Bay explores the enduring themes and powerful artistic voices that have emerged from the Bay Area from the precolonial era to the present, highlighting transhistorical affinities among the many artists, filmmakers, authors, and others who have drawn inspiration from the Bay’s distinctive character. Works by renowned artists such as Joan Brown, Bruce Conner, Jay DeFeo, Richard Diebenkorn, Sargent Johnson, and Chiura Obata are displayed alongside works by emerging talents. The exhibition also includes work by many women and artists of color whose works are new to BAMPFA’s collection. Continuous film screenings in the gallery explore the Bay Area’s rich history as an incubator for avant-garde and experimental cinema, while other sections feature highlights of BAMPFA’s archives of audio and visual documentation of artist talks and performances. Bay Area writers—past and present—are also included in a new, interactive postcard project, and a robust schedule of performances, workshops, and other public programs complements the exhibition.

Organized by Director and Chief Curator Lawrence Rinder, Film Curator Kathy Geritz, and Engagement Associate David Wilson, with Curatorial Assistant Matthew Coleman and Assistant Film Archivist Jon Shibata.

Al Wong: Lost Sister
March 28–June 17, 2018

A meditation on a family member the artist never met, Al Wong: Lost Sister is a series of sixty-four unique but related variations of a portrait of a young woman. The artist attempts to imagine and capture the psychological pressures felt by the subject, who was trapped in China and unable to join or contact her family in the United States due to geopolitical conflict and revolution. Fifty-seven of the images incorporate the same photographic portrait—torn, cut, or shredded, the pieces reassembled into a face that is barely recognizable, and at times even psychedelic or alien. In other instances, the visage is stapled, excised, burned, or incised with pins. Consecutive manipulations of the image evoke not only the Chinese immigrant experience, but also the universal feelings of displacement and detachment that permeate immigrant communities.

48th Annual Master of Fine Arts Graduate Exhibition
May 11–June 17, 2018

Each spring, BAMPFA partners with the University of California, Berkeley Department of Art Practice to mount an exhibition of new work by the department’s graduating class of MFA students—many of whom receive the opportunity to showcase their work in a museum setting for the first time. This year’s exhibition includes exceptional work by Maggie Lawson, Nancy Sayavong, Nicki Green, Olivia Ting, Rachel Stallings, and Sarah-Dawn Albani.

Organized by Curatorial Assistant Valerie Moon.

Master Traces, Transcultural Visions
May 16–September 16, 2018

Through works from South, Southeast, and East Asia as well as the Himalayas dating from the second through the twentieth centuries, this exhibition examines how Buddhist power was visually expressed and transmitted throughout Asia. The exhibition follows two traces: the perpetuation of Buddhist teachings through the creation of pantheons and lineages, and the exchange and appropriation of sacred Buddhist forms. Selected artworks from BAMPFA’s collection reveal how visual practices were borrowed and traversed cultural, linguistic, and geographic boundaries.

Organized by Yi Yi Mon (Rosaline) Kyo, Andrew W. Mellon Postdoctoral Curatorial Fellow.

Alicia McCarthy and Ruby Neri / MATRIX 270
May 23–August 26, 2018

This exhibition convenes two artists who have collaborated and maintained a strong artistic dialogue over the last several decades, ever since they were students at the San Francisco Art Institute (SFAI). Often associated with the San Francisco Mission School—a term coined to describe a group of artists living and working in the city’s Mission neighborhood in the 1990s and early 2000s—McCarthy and Neri each work in different media but share a range of aesthetic affinities and artistic approaches. For this exhibition, and the celebration of the fortieth anniversary of BAMPFA’s MATRIX Program for Contemporary Art, the two artists have also produced a collaborative poster that will be available in the BAMPFA Store.

Organized by Apsara DiQuinzio, curator of modern and contemporary art and Phyllis C. Wattis MATRIX Curator, with Valerie Moon, curatorial assistant.
Over the past decade, BAMPFA’s collection has experienced tremendous growth from a combination of gifts and acquisitions that have strengthened many areas of the museum’s encyclopedic holdings. This selection of recently acquired works reflect the geographic and historical breadth of the collection, bringing together paintings, drawings, and sculptures that are united by their unusual approaches to color and form . . . plus one especially memorable sixteenth-century drawing of a unicorn.

Organized by Director and Chief Curator Lawrence Rinder with Curatorial Assistant Valerie Moon.

This exhibition highlights a selection of rarely exhibited photographs by Joanne Leonard that have recently entered BAMPFA’s permanent collection. Currently based in Ann Arbor, Michigan, Leonard is a California native whose black-and-white images often explore the intimacy of domestic and communal spaces. The photographs on view are portraits of life on the streets and in homes of Oakland from the 1960s to 1970s.

Organized by Curatorial Assistant Valerie Moon.

Working within the overlapping discourses of conceptual art, land art, poetry, and feminist art practices, the acclaimed Chilean artist Cecilia Vicuña has long refused categorical distinctions. Drawing from Vicuña’s four-decade practice in performance, sculpture, drawing, video, text, and site-specific installations, Cecilia Vicuña: About to Happen—the artist’s first major survey at an American museum—presents a large selection of Vicuna’s precario sculptures, which feature found objects in lyrical juxtaposition. Just as Vicuña joins disparate objects and materials in her work, so too does she weave together disparate communities, revealing shared relationships to land and sea and to the economic and environmental disparities of the twenty-first century.

Cecilia Vicuña: About to Happen is organized by the Contemporary Arts Center, New Orleans (CAC), and co-curated by Andrea Andersson, The Helis Foundation Chief Curator of Visual Arts at the CAC, and Julia Bryan-Wilson, professor of modern and contemporary art at UC Berkeley. The BAMPFA presentation is organized by Apsara DiQuinzio, curator of modern and contemporary art and Phyllis C. Wattis MATRIX Curator, with Valerie Moon, curatorial associate. A full-color publication, co-imprinted by Siglio Press and the CAC, accompanies the exhibition.

The life and art of Peter Hujar (1934–1987) were rooted in downtown New York. Private by nature, combative in manner, well-read, and widely connected, Hujar inhabited a world of avant-garde dance, music, art, and drag performance. His mature career paralleled the public unfolding of gay life between the Stonewall uprising in 1969 and the AIDS crisis of the 1980s. In his loft studio in the East Village, Hujar made, in his words, “uncomplicated, direct photographs of complicated and difficult subjects,” immortalizing moments, individuals, and subcultures passing at the speed of life.

Peter Hujar: Speed of Life presents one hundred and forty photographs by this influential artist, following Hujar from his beginnings in the mid-1950s to his central role in the East Village art scene three decades later. The exhibition is accompanied by an illustrated catalog that includes full-page reproductions of all 160 works on view in the show.

Peter Hujar: Speed of Life is organized by the Morgan Library and Museum and Fundación MAPFRE, Madrid, and curated by the Morgan’s photography curator Joel Smith. The BAMPFA presentation is organized by Apsara DiQuinzio, curator of modern and contemporary art and Phyllis C. Wattis MATRIX Curator, with Matthew Coleman, curatorial associate.

Art Wall: Barbara Stauffacher Solomon
August 15, 2018–March 3, 2019

In the 1960s, the San Francisco-based artist, designer, and writer Barbara Stauffacher Solomon pioneered the influential architectural phenomenon Supergraphics—a mix of Swiss Modernism and West Coast Pop. Now in her eighties, Stauffacher Solomon has been commissioned by BAMPFA to create a new Supergraphics installation in the museum’s interior. Land(e)scape 2018 is the fifth in a series of temporary, site-specific works commissioned for BAMPFA’s Art Wall, a massive rotating canvas across from the entrance.

Organized by BAMPFA Director Emeritus Jacquelynn Baas.

Old Masters in a New Light: Rediscovering BAMPFA’s European Collection
September 19–December 16, 2018

Featuring highlights of BAMPFA’s European Old Master collection, this exhibition includes some of the museum’s earliest acquisitions as well as major new donations that are being exhibited for the first time. The selection of works focuses on the depiction of the figure in paintings, sculptures, prints, and drawings.

The exhibition includes masterworks by some of the most celebrated masters of European art history, including Battistello Caracciolo, Cavalier d’Arpino, Peter Paul Rubens, Jean-Honoré Fragonard, Rembrandt van Rijn, and Giambattista Tiepolo. Recent acquisitions include important paintings by Garofalo, Francesco Solimena, Gaetano Gandolfi, Augustin Bernard d’Aesci, and Giuseppe Varotti.

Harvey Quaytman: Against the Static
October 17, 2018–January 27, 2019

This exhibition marks the first career retrospective of work by the distinguished Modernist painter Harvey Quaytman (1937–2002), whose works are celebrated for their inventive exploration of shape, meticulous attention to surface texture, and experimental application of color. While Quaytman’s paintings and drawings display a rigorous commitment to formalism, they are simultaneously invested with rich undertones of sensuality, decorativeness, and humor—often expressed in playful poetic titles, such as A Street Called Straight and Kufikind. BAMPFA’s exhibition features approximately 75 works that demonstrate the arc of Quaytman’s oeuvre, from his radically curvilinear canvases of the late 1960s and 1970s, to his exploration of geometric abstraction in the 1980s, and finally to his serene cruciform canvases of the 1990s.

Organized by Apsara DiQuinzio, curator of modern and contemporary art and Phyllis C. Wattis MATRIX Curator, with Valerie Moon, curatorial assistant.
Dimensionism: Modern Art in the Age of Einstein
November 7, 2018–March 3, 2019

BAMPFA presents the world premiere of a national touring exhibition, organized by Amherst College’s Mead Art Museum, that examines the revolutionary impact of modern science on twentieth-century art in Europe and the United States. The exhibition takes its title from the 1936 Dimensionist Manifesto, which called for artists to respond to the ongoing scientific revolutions of their time—from physics and astronomy to microbiology.

The exhibition convenes significant works from museums throughout the U.S. and Europe to reveal how modern science infiltrated the arts and inspired a range of artists. These include not only signers of the Manifesto, such as Hans Arp and Sophie Taeuber-Arp, Alexander Calder, Sonia and Robert Delaunay, Marcel Duchamp, Wassily Kandinsky, Joan Miró, László Moholy-Nagy, and Francis Picabia, but also many others, including Pablo Picasso, Joseph Cornell, Helen Lundeberg, Max Ernst, Matta, and Wolfgang Paalen.

Dimensionism: Modern Art in the Age of Einstein is organized by the Mead Art Museum and curated by Curator of American Art Vanja Malloy, Ph.D. The BAMPFA presentation is organized by Director and Chief Curator Lawrence Rinder with Curatorial Assistant Matthew Coleman.
